Paid Time Off Accrual Policy

Full-time employees accrue paid time off (PTO) at a rate of 1.5 days per month worked, up to a maximum of 10 unused PTO days that may be carried over into the next calendar year. This accrual rate applies to all full-time employees and is in addition to any other paid holidays or vacation days earned through other means. As described under the Employee Equipment Provisioning Policy, employees are responsible for ensuring they have adequate personal time off to cover their PTO needs, as excessive use of company equipment may impact productivity and work efficiency.

PTO accrual begins on the first day of employment and continues until the employee's departure from the company. Employees can request PTO through the Business Travel Authorization Procedure, which outlines the necessary steps for requesting time off for business-related travel or other approved purposes. It is essential to note that PTO requests must be submitted in advance whenever possible, as last-minute requests may impact team workload and productivity.

Unused PTO days are subject to a carryover limit of 10 days per calendar year. After this limit is reached, any additional unused PTO days will not be carried over into the next year. Employees who fail to use their accrued PTO within the designated timeframe may forfeit some or all of their remaining balance, depending on company policies and applicable laws. It is recommended that employees review their PTO balances regularly to ensure they are utilizing their time off in a timely manner.

In cases where an employee's PTO request conflicts with business needs or operational requirements, management reserves the right to approve or deny the request based on the company's overall workload and staffing needs. Employees should be prepared to discuss alternative arrangements or solutions that meet both personal and business objectives.
