

Business Travel Authorization Procedure

Business Travel Authorization Procedure

All business travel by employees of [Company Name] requires prior approval from their supervisor or department head, as outlined in our company's policies and procedures manual. This procedure is designed to ensure that all business travel is conducted in a responsible and cost-effective manner, while also protecting the interests of the company and its stakeholders.

For international travel, it is mandatory that director-level approval be obtained at least two weeks prior to departure. This ensures that senior management has sufficient time to review and approve the travel arrangements, taking into account factors such as business necessity, budget constraints, and potential risks associated with the trip. As described under our Whistleblower Protection Policy, employees are reminded that any personal or financial interests that may conflict with their official duties must be disclosed in advance of approval.

Domestic business travel is subject to a per-diem meal allowance cap of $75 per day, as outlined in our company's expense reimbursement policy. Employees are expected to keep receipts and supporting documentation for all meals and expenses incurred during business travel, which will be reviewed and reimbursed in accordance with company policies and procedures. As part of the IT Change Management Procedure, employees are also required to notify their supervisor or department head of any changes to their travel plans, including flight cancellations or schedule changes.

In addition to obtaining prior approval for business travel, employees are expected to comply with all applicable laws and regulations, as well as company policies and procedures. This includes adhering to our company's code of conduct and ethics guidelines, which are outlined in the Whistleblower Protection Policy. By following this procedure and adhering to related policies, employees can help ensure that business travel is conducted in a responsible and cost-effective manner, while also protecting the interests of the company and its stakeholders.